Ground erosion at adult center

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

VENICE — Concerned that further damage may occur to the Venice-Lincoln Technical Center building, due to soil erosion around the foundation, Peter Ponce, VLTC director, recommended steps be taken to remedy the situation.

The ground has sunk about four or five feet beneath small foyer leading into the child care and preschool part of the building's foundation, Ponce reported to the Board of Education last week.

"Evidently when the building was completed by the architect last year, you couldn't see this erosion. Now, underneath the crawl space, you can see the foundation of the building," Ponce said.

"I believe this (erosion) has been going on since 1983 and probably was worse in 1983 and 1984 than now," the director said.

In 1983, the ground water table was determined to be at 9 feet in the Brooklyn section of the Corps of Engineers figures, Ponce explained. In contrast, the water table in the same area in 1956 was reported at 20 feet, he said.

The adult vocational-education center is located on South Fourth Street, not far from the Brooklyn village limits.

Owned and administered by the Venice School District, Venice-Lincoln offers instructional programs, staffing and building maintenance funded with federal and local monies.

"As the water level gets up, it is forcing sand into the pump — causing the the ground to sink and exposing the foundation," Ponce said. The pump removes water from drainage tile around the building and apparently is slowly drawing in particles of sand, resulting in erosion, he said last week.

Professional help may be needed to remove a sheetmetal jacket from a pipe at the adult education school. The jacket is badly rusted and may contain asbestos, he said.

"I've talked to three people and got three different ideas," to rectify the problem, the VLTC

Endorsements earned

There are many fine persons running for office in the Quad City-Area along with some who don't belong on a public ballot.

In determining who to endorse, staff members reviewed the answers candidates gave to specific questions. In the Granite City aldermanic races for example, we scrutinized how candidates said they would react to another attempt to repeal the telephone tax. There is reason for the tax, but we maintain public representatives should vote as the public directs.

Some staff members offered personal insights about candidates they'd seen in action or knew of through community involvement. For example, in Granite City's 1st Ward race they weighed words for Juanita Crawley, an advocate of senior citizen rights.

Our endorsements, based on our assessments of those who would be best for the various offices are:

ALDERMAN, GRANITE CITY

1ST WARD — She volunteers work on behalf of senior citizens in three organizations. At the same time, she pledges allegiance to no political cliques. Her grasp of city issues is firm and reasonable because she attends council meetings. If given a job to do, we believe she will not fail the 1st Ward or the council. We endorse Juanita Crawley.

2ND WARD — He offers a level-headed perspective that puts the public before politics. With a bachelor's degree in economics and cash management experience, he offers expertise to help the city deal with economic problems. We endorse James Miller.

3RD WARD — The incumbent voted to keep the telephone tax, to raise his expense account, to spend funds for a public works director, and to block all grocery stores from having liquor licenses. The challenger would remove the telephone tax since he said he would vote as the people in his ward voted; he would not spend on a public works director, and would give grocery stores liquor licenses as the licenses become available. We endorse the challenger, Darrell Harbinson.

4TH WARD — We've vehemently disagreed with his attitude that this or that must occur before the public can be headed on the telephone tax — and are displeased that he missed votes on doubling aldermanic expense accounts and on the first occupancy permit vote. Even so, Tom Hewlett isn't a bad alderman. His opponent, Dan Partney, has a great deal of civic and business experience. We believe he would work tirelessly as an alderman and be an advocate of the 4th Ward. We believe he would be an exceptional alderman. We offer No Endorsement.

5TH WARD — He represents the public. He voted to remove the telephone tax because the public voted to remove it — "... I'm here to give them their wishes," he said. That attitude is indicative of why we're endorsing Lloyd Bailey.

6TH WARD — He's already been there as 6th Ward's alderman. He views the telephone tax as what's doing something the city may need but that should be removed because the public said so. His answers to questions on such issues as the sewer problem and liquor licenses are realistic. We endorse Walter Milton.

7TH WARD — Common sense... He's for tightening city spending, getting from all city workers an honest day's work for an honest day's pay by removing the telephone tax as the voters demanded, and putting the liquor license lid to a public vote. That's the kind of thinking that keeps the public's will in mind. We're endorsing John Krekovich.

ALDERMAN, MADISON

2ND WARD — No endorsement.

3RD WARD — He's an independent thinker who has been volunteering his help to the city. His cooperative spirit would be a welcome addition to the council. We endorse John Hamm.

ALDERMAN, VENICE

1ST WARD — Active in community affairs and able to stand her ground, she is in touch with city concerns and is already active in dealing with crime through the Neighborhood Watch Program. She deserves a chance to continue her work for the city as an alderman. We endorse Carolyn Wilson.

2ND WARD — He's been there. As a council member for 32 years, he knows the city as few do. We endorse George Mangiaracino.

GRANITE CITY PARK BOARD

ONE SEAT — Since he's already doing work for the park program, it only makes sense to let him continue. We endorse Robert Austin.

Board, chamber well met

The District 9 School Board acted in wisdom to join the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

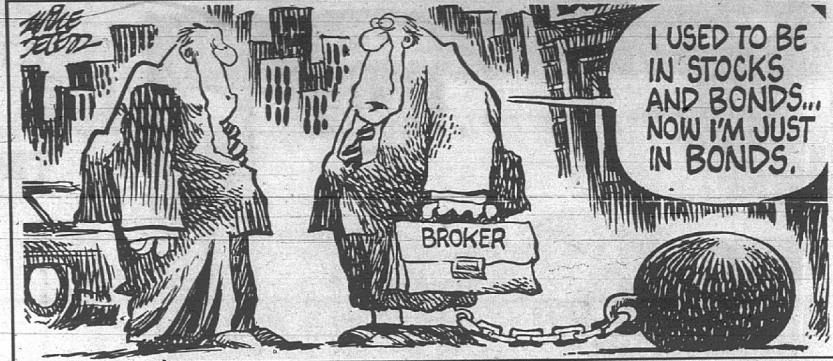

The board joins other civic groups, including the Granite City Council, in providing the monetary backing needed for the chamber to do its job of attracting and retaining business. This area's future depends on the chamber's ability to push the slowly building momentum of a revitalized Quad City Area.

The efforts of chamber members RC Bush, Don Partney, Tom Holloway, Bob Tabor and Paul Sodko are generally unnoticed. Their behind-the-scenes talks with business leaders inside and outside the community have the potential to influence the area's appearance, employment and population.

Last week, for example, Bush, Partney, Lombard and Sodko were at a fair for automotive parts suppliers in St. Louis. Suppliers for General Motors, Chrysler and Ford were there to look over the region. Our Tri-Cities representatives got some nibbles at the fair. The more nibbles received, the greater the chance we have to attract industrial and business developments.

The encouragement and monetary backing the chamber gives to the community, such as the School Board, are like a pat on the back and a much deserved "well done" to those trying to build economic progress in the Quad City Area.

Deputy's quick action averts client's injury

To the editor:
On Tuesday, the 10th of February, I left a client at the (Madison County) courthouse for a few minutes.

I returned, I found that John Onesky was treating him for a seizure.

John's competence and command of the situation were most impressive.

There is no doubt that my client would have injured himself or anyone who attempted to him, had it not been for John's ability.

John also gave directions on whom to call, knew the phone numbers and which command of the situation that no one doubted who was in charge.

It is nice to know that we have one of your deputies in the courthouse in uniform to handle things that few other people could.

My thanks to Deputy John Onesky.

City progress requires cash from taxation

To the editor:
Your recent front-page question regarding the City Council's vote on the telephone tax is an important topic especially concerning the April 7 aldermanic election. The question regarding the tax reflects the positive attitude of the majority of our councilmen. They should be commended for their fortitude.

If that tax had not passed, some vital services would have had to be cut by the city.

Is cable TV service OK?

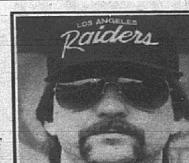

As the controversy surrounding the services being offered by Cencom Cable Television continues this week, people exiting the Cencom Contemporary coverage store in Granite City, Wednesday, were asked what they think of the cable TV services they are receiving from Cencom. They also were asked if it was an imposition on customers to require them to visit the store to pick up extra needed equipment.

William Dew,
Madison
"I just got back in town yesterday. It's the first we've heard about it (the controversy). It's better than having to pay for it (the extra equipment); at least they give it to you."

Ralph Miller,
Madison
"I don't approve of this kind of operation. They change hands (ownership of the cable company) and the first thing they do is raise the rates. Then you have to put this garbage on your TV."

Dennis Meuren,
Granite City
"I've had any trouble with cable the five years I've had it and now all of a sudden they jam it down your throat. More or less it's 'take the damn thing and shut up.' So I told them if they didn't take the box today and hook it up myself, they're going to charge me $15 to do it."

Indict 2 in cocaine case

SPRINGFIELD — In a case described as a "spinoff" from an investigation involving a famous race-car driver, two Granite City men have been indicted by a federal grand jury for conspiracy to distribute cocaine in Madison County.

Timothy Edwin Barton, 20, and Steven Earl Simpson, 30, were arrested Saturday. They were in the custody of the U.S. marshal's office on a $20,000 bond on each set by U.S. Magistrate Gerald B. Cohn in East St. Louis.

A sealed indictment returned on Feb. 27 against Barton and Simpson accused the pair of conspiracy to distribute cocaine in Madison County during the period of Jan. 1-Feb. 8, 1967, said Special Agent Dean Paisley of the FBI.

The charges were part of a "spinoff" case from an investigation that resulted in the indictments of racing driver Randy Thomas Lanier and nine others from southern states for alleged distribution of illegal narcotics, primarily cocaine, over a six-year period, Paisley said.

Lanier is a recent Indianapolis 500 rookie of the Year winner. He is fugitive, Paisley said.

Although the case involving the Granite City men is "completely separate," Paisley said it was one of several spinoffs involving leads generated in the major investigation involving Lanier.

The Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation assisted the FBI in the case.

If convicted, Barton and Simpson could each be sentenced to a maximum of 20 years in prison and/or fined up to $250,000.

WOMAN BATTERED, TREATED

Mary M. Sparks of Edgewood told Granite City police March 5 an acquaintance struck her several times with his open hands during an argument at a home in the 2400 block of Sherman. She was knocked against a door, causing a laceration to her eye. She was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

ROBBER OF WALLET, 60

Charles Mays, of Elkhorn, Ky., was robbed while walking in the last row of the truck parking area at Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza March 4 at 11:45 a.m. on March 4. He said two women walked up to him; one grabbed his wallet containing $60 and both ran from the area.

THIEF COOPTED BY 2 WOMEN

A truck driver, Davis Gillis of Collie Ark., told Madison police at 4:42 a.m. March 6 he left the Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza restaurant and, as he approached his truck, saw two women leaving. When he stopped to speak to them, one displayed a knife and told him to stay away. They ran toward the parking lot and disappeared, apparently taking $250 in cash and a citizen band radio valued at $200.

SAFETY TAKEN FROM LOCKET

A thief took $90 cash from the Madison High School locker of David Hamm, a student, authorities were told at 9:30 a.m. March 5. His father, John Hamm, president of the Madison Board of Education, told police the thief apparently took place at 11:30 a.m. the previous day.

Rogers said she was trying to turn left into American Village Shopping Center from eastbound Fehling Road when her auto was struck from the rear by a car struck by Travis Whitmer, 295 Madison Ave.

7 WINDOWS BROKEN AT COOLIDGE JUNIOR HIGH

Two students were caught after custodians at Coolidge Junior High School heard glass breaking and called police at 10:25 p.m. March 6.

The custodians reported chasing two young men from the rear of the school but lost sight of them behind the gymnasium. Two later were picked up for questioning.

Seven windows were broken in three classrooms and lettering was spray-painted on the outside of the building.

TV TAKEN IN BURGLARY

Douglas McElwain, 1737a Delmar Ave., said March 4 a burglar took a 19-inch color TV, valued at $39, from his apartment.

Gateway Hospital reduces room rates

By Bonita Gower-Tillman
Staff writer

EAST ST. LOUIS — A rate reduction was announced by Gateway Community Hospital officials Friday.

The facility, owned by Gateway Medical Systems Inc. of Atlanta, is one of the company's hospitals which is reducing the daily room rate from $150 to $95 a day.

Skilled nursing home room rates will be reduced from $70 to $45 and all other charges are being reduced about 20 percent.

Hospital officials said the reductions are an effort to do all they can to make the facility a quality site and provide local citizens a choice when they must seek hospital care.

"I must operate this hospital similar to high quality hotels in the Metropolitan St. Louis area," Christian Kolom, the hospital's administrator, said. "Physical changes in our building and the successful recruiting of top staff will make Gateway the 'hospital of choice'."

Gateway's current average daily rate of 65 patients in the 218-bed hospital, Kolom said, and much of the problem stems from name recognition.

"We want to change that. This was once the site for Christian Welfare Hospital and Community Hospital, but this is Gateway Community Hospital — a new corporation," he said.

The hospital also recently opened an emergency clinic to service those problems which are not "true emergencies," said Donald West, a public relations person with the corporation.

Kolom said there is a definite need for such a facility because many people use the emergency rooms of hospitals as their physicians.

Patients will not have to wait as long as in regular emergency rooms because serious, life-threatening cases will be treated in a different section, he said.

Service to underserved people often lacks quality, Kolom said, but quality is a priority in the Gateway system.

"There's always going to have to be a number two," he said. "But we want to make this a type hospital like those in St. Louis so people will ask for Gateway Community Hospital."

GMS has managed the hospital since 1984 when it was placed in bankruptcy court. The city approved $6.5 million in industrial revenue bonds to help save the hospital. The loan was repaid in July 1985.

Though hospital officials announced a plan in September 1985 to reopen the obstetrics/gynecology unit, the goal has not been realized.

Neither of the two East St. Louis hospitals currently offer the service.

GCH officials are awaiting a hearing with the state licensing agency before opening the wing. Additional information was requested by the state and a response is expected in the next six months, West said.

"The facility is completed. We're just awaiting an okay," he said.

Capitol reporters in space grab

SPRINGFIELD — Rumors of tax increase proposals float through the air. There will be a push for a new state school aid formula. Will "Build Illinois" be expanded?

All of these seem like important stories. But there is one overriding story that has the attention of reporters here and the Illinois Statehouse reappportionment.

But this story is not about the once-per-decade legislative remap, when new legislative districts are drawn to conform to new census information.

This story is about apportioning space in the Capitol pressroom. It is a story about when reporters act like politicians. Here's the situation:

Space is provided in the Capitol for reporters who cover state government and the Legislature. The pressroom literally is overlooked by most Statehouse visitors because right above the door is a giant painting by Gustav Fuchs of the signing of a treaty with the Indians by George Rogers Clark. As tour groups look up in awe at the 40-by-20-foot painting, their eyes often miss the double door under the painting, reads: Illinois Legislative Correspondents Association, Press Room.

The pressroom takes up 3,900 square feet in the mezzanine level of the Capitol's west wing. There are 26 newspapers, wire services, magazines, radio stations and networks and television stations represented by bureaus in the pressroom. Many of two- or three-person cubicles. Twenty-three bureaus are staffed full-time.

The space is under the jurisdiction of Secretary of State Jim Edgar. But Edgar, like his predecessors, refused to become enmeshed in pressroom disputes — no politician wants to become identified with a reporter who spends part of the time covering state government news, but the rest of the time covering other stories for which the state should not provide space?

As much as governmental reporters like to criticize the way real politicians handle situations (and some believe it's in their own minds that they could do better given the chance), they tend to fall into the same patterns when faced with similar challenges.

For example, the ILCA has established a special committee to review the reapportionment question, just as is done in the Legislature.

This committee has been faced with the prospect that three bureaus want new space and only two can be accommodated in the current pressroom configuration. In the words of one frustrated pressroom veteran on the committee, the job calls for "putting five pounds of (manure) in a three-pound bag."

The solution was predictable to those who have watched the Legislature grapple with such quandaries. Rather than trying to set rules, the committee decided to have about the same number of voters.

In pressroom reapportionment, however, there are no rules.

Do interns count as people in determining how much space a bureau needs? Sometimes yes, sometimes no. Does the amount of equipment used by the bureau play a role? Some yes, some no. How do you count a person who spends part of the time covering state government news, but the rest of the time covering other stories for which the state should not provide space?

As much as governmental reporters like to criticize the way real politicians handle situations (and some believe it's in their own minds that they could do better given the chance), they tend to fall into the same patterns when faced with similar challenges.

The build option, however, has a price. There would have to be an additional direct cost to pay for the construction. Reporters are about as happy about that prospect as lawmakers are in voting for a tax increase.

In the end, there may have to be a summit meeting of ILCA leaders to reach agreement on a compromise plan.

The conflict will pass and probably will eventually shift its attention back to the governor's tax increase proposals and to legislative issues.

And once again they will start complaining about the way politicians handle the tough questions when they are afraid of making anyone mad.

HOLY FAMILY LOG CHURCH was the scene of special services during the Jarrot Mansion Open House held Feb. 28 in Cahokia. Members of the Jarrot Mansion Project and the Militia de Sainte Famille co-sponsored the event aimed at increasing public awareness of reconstruction work at the historic landmark.

Holy Family has seen many services

Dragoons and colonels met each other for what could have been the first time in centuries Feb. 28 at Jarrot House in Cahokia.

The soldiers were at Jarrot House as part of the "Fete du Bon Vieux Temps" held to reacquaint the public with the 177-year-old landmark.

"It needs a lot of work," said Loretta Lopinot, head of the Jarrot Mansion Project, the group that has formed to expedite repair and staffing of the mansion as a historic landmark and tourist attraction. "We wanted to let the state know we're still interested in rebuilding the mansion."

Lopinot told Chamber of Commerce members last week the Jerome Mansion Project felt the state had not lived up to the promises it made when it took over the building in 1980. "They tend to fund projects in areas that can prove the public is behind the effort," Lopinot said.

More than 300 people visited the mansion, Holy Family Church and Courthouse during the five-hour open house. From the outside the home looks sturdy enough, but inside the building looked far from remodeled.

Only two rooms and the kitchen were available for visitors on the bottom floor. The upper level had holes in the floor of one room and a knotty texture in another. Guides explained the knots were there because softer portions of the floor's wood had been worn away by heavy traffic at winter balls held by Jarrot.

"This house was the center of social activity," said one guide. "There weren't many communities where a house was bigger than the church."

The knotty floor added to the attraction many voiced while walking through the house. Fireplaces, windows and lighting also drew comments.

Highlighting the evening was a mass at the Holy Family Church and a pair of fashion shows by Militia de Sainte-Famille, a group of French-colonial re-enacters who dressed in colonial attire for the event.

The Jarrot Mansion Project sponsored the open house in conjunction with the Militia de Sainte-Famille. Organizers estimate the event raised $50 toward renovation projects at the site. The open house also prompted one visitor to donate the stone necessary to recreate the stoop that originally fronted the building.

The home was built in 1808 after the owner moved to Cahokia from Baltimore. Jarrot was a successful land speculator.

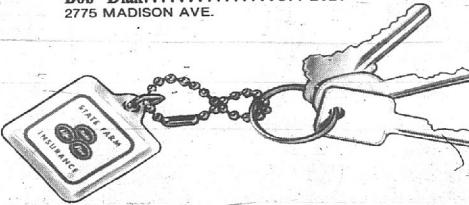

The home was occupied by sisters of the Holy Family convent until 1965. The village held possession of the home until 1980 when it donated the building to the state. The Jarrot Mansion Project began in July 1986 to focus attention on the preservation project. The mansion is featured in the Winter 1987 edition of Grassroots, a magazine published by the Grassroots Institute an organization dedicated to the preservation of historic buildings.

BILL H. TERRELL

AREA MANAGER OF THE NATION FOR 1986

BILL H. TERRELL

The Franklin Life Insurance Company of Springfield, Illinois, recently announced local insurance executive Bill H. Terrell, owner of the Bill H. Terrell Franklin Life Agency, was awarded their highest management award in the nation for 1986.

This top award is given each year to the manager whose agency attains the highest in man power growth, new business growth, over all high persistence and the highest in professional leadership excellence.

Terrell's 65 person agency in 1986 submitted in excess of 100 million dollars of life insurance with a 94% persistency.

The Bill H. Terrell Agency is located at 3600 Nameoki Road, Suite 202, Granite City. The Franklin Life Insurance Company is in its second hundred years being established in 1884. Franklin Life is one of the top 25 premier life insurance companies that has maintained an A+ Superior rating each year by the A. M. Best Company since their origin in 1899.

Terrell, a former Granite City teacher-coach has been representing Franklin Life locally for over 25 years. Terrell not only is a believer and leader in the life insurance industry, he is an active community leader through his church both local and state, through Rotary,

United Way and Chamber of Commerce.

The Bill Terrell Agency specializes in all forms of life insurance, tax deferred life insurance, deferred annuities, mutual funds, pension maximization, college plans, IRAs, tax sheltered annuities, HR 10, 401 K, mortgage insurance and income protection.

Like the companies that supply them, fertilizer and chemical dealers also are going through mergers, consolidations and closings.

"There's a shakeout and attrition going on," said Reggie Cook, outgoing chairman of the Illinois Fertilizer and Chemical Association.

Employee safety, economic yield clubs, insurance and coping with pollution "are real and necessary issues that we as an industry aren't drinking water," said Cook, who owns and operates Tri-County Chemical in Eldorado.

Dwight Dunbar, vice president of the IPCA, says the industry still has life.

"The thing we're all recognizing is that farmers still are producers," Dunbar said. "They mean they will buy some fertilizer and chemicals to produce a crop. As long as that is cost-competitive, there will be a reason for a fertilizer and chemical business to be here."

In October 1985, there were 34 manufacturers of agricultural chemicals and fertilizers that did more than $1 million worth of business; today, there are 26, says

Larry Brady, vice president and general manager of FMC Corp. in Philadelphia, a consolidated manufacturer of fertilizers and insecticides.

Brady expects 10 manufacturers to be left when the shakeout is complete. He thinks those 10 companies will have sales of $1 billion to $2 billion.

"It's not different from what is going on in the airline business," Brady said.

GROUNDED WATER

Ground water, regulation of pesticides and chemicals, and insurance are also major concern to IPCA members.

Brady of FMC Corp. says additional data on safe levels of pesticides in ground water are needed before states begin imposing legislation.

"Five years ago, ground water wasn't a big issue," said Brady. "Today, to support ground water legislation, only now being started. As a state or nation, we need more EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) funding and resources."

He fears the possibility of legislating all chemicals out of existence in the absence of technical data to determine safe levels.

"It's crucial for the states to make a frustrated response to the ground water issue," said Brady, because no national legislation has been passed. "States need to ensure they have the same technical data available as there is on the federal level."

Fertilizer dealers might have to worry with current shortage of willing insurance carriers for a few more years.

Dave Haugstad, casualty claims manager with The Mill Mutuals in Iowa, says there's no magical solution for dealers who have had policies canceled. Insurance companies are having trouble finding reinsurance for certain lines, such as liability insurance.

"I'd speculate that additional companies will come back in the market," said Haugstad. "We're seeing signs of that."

NEW CROPS

Don't look for sunflowers or rapeseed to replace corn and soybean fields in the near future. Emerson Nafziger, agronomy specialist for the University of Illinois, says prospects are slim for alternate crops to be grown on a scale comparable to corn and beans.

Many farmers have toyed with the idea of switching to alternate crops because corn and bean prices are so low.

Nafziger says prices for most alternate crops — which usually are a replacement for corn and soybeans — processing are tied closely to corn and beans.

"We don't know other crops very well," said Nafziger. "We haven't had the years of experience with how they respond to climate or yield variances from year to year."

He cautions farmers to try new crops — buckwheat, cranberries (purple or grain), amaranth (sold as flour in health food stores) — on small acreages before they make major financial commitments.

"The climate and soils in Illinois are such that we produce corn and soybeans better than anything else," Nafziger said.

A new strain of alfalfa puts 50 percent more nitrogen back in the soil and promises only one-year growth cycle rather than the typical three to five years.

Research personnel from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and University of Minnesota have spent 10 years breeding the strain, known as Nitro. Nitro hit markets in northern parts of the Corn Belt in 1986. Gary Heichel of the USDA's ag research service says the project could make alfalfa a common part of the corn/soybean rotation.

For one thing, Nitro offers farmers a chance to save on nitrogen costs.

"We foresee the potential for a type of alfalfa that farmers might be able to use in cropping systems," said Heichel.

Many farmers don't include alfalfa in their cropping systems because of the commitment it requires — the three- to five-year growth cycle. Farmers didn't want to sign up that long because money could be made growing corn and soybeans.

Nitro solves that problem. "It's a useful alternative for farmers as they face crises in energy costs (for fertilizer) and protection," Heichel said.

The researchers began with single-year alfalfa varieties used in Southwestern states. Then they adapted them to Midwestern conditions, diseases and harvest management programs.

Since alfalfa has a root system similar to that of a carrot, the researchers tried increasing the concentration of nitrogen in the tap root. Experiments were conducted to increase the concentration and the size of tap roots. The result was an annual (as opposed to a perennial) alfalfa, higher in nitrogen and with a larger tap root.

Both the USDA and University of Minnesota have applied for plant variety protection, since they developed the new strain, but neither will receive money for the accomplishment.

In the past year, three seed companies marketed Nitro.

Amy Deckas, manager of forage products for Peterson Seed Co. in Savage, Minn., says interest in Nitro has been unbelievable. "We've had phone calls like you wouldn't believe," said Deckas. "We've sold out of seed."

Sales are hampered by a poor production year, in general. By January next year, she hopes to have plenty of seed available.

Nitro retails for around $2.40 a pound, similar to that of traditional premium alfalfa varieties.

Heichel said the new alfalfa would offer three hay cuttings in Illinois, but it would continue to grow in September and October instead of going into a winter dormancy. That spurt of lush growth in the fall is when the alfalfa fixes the additional nitrogen.

"The idea is so farmers won't have to use as much nitrogen," said Heichel. "This variety will provide much more nitrogen to a succeeding crop."

He also believes the new variety can be processed into pelleted alfalfa because the protein content is high.

Meanwhile, Heichel has begun other research to find out why more nitrogen is transferred when alfalfa is grown in combination with a forage grass and investigating how to improve the action of key enzymes in nitrogen fixation.

Southerner could aid Simon

WASHINGTON — In the time-honored tradition of potential vice presidential contenders, Sen. Paul Simon pleads little or no interest in the job.

The Illinois Democrat says he is pushing Sen. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas to take the No. 2 spot on the presidential ticket because he thinks Bumpers' ticket will be more likely to win.

That may be.

But Simon, 56, might have a better chance of becoming the vice presidential nominee if someone below the Mason-Dixon line, like Bumpers, becomes the Democratic presidential nominee.

The conventional wisdom is that Democrats will want a southerner in the first or second spot on the national ticket to try to regain the once "Solid South."

That would knock Simon out of contention for No. 2 if the presidential nomination is won by George H. W. Bush or George Bush.

Simon, however, is not the only southerner to be considered.

If Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri won the presidential nomination, there would be little in the way of geographical balance to be gained by crossing the Mississippi River to tap his neighbor, Simon.

However, if a southerner, such as Bumpers, were to seek and win the presidential nomination, Democrats might well be inclined to balance the ticket by filling the second position with a northerner from a major, industrial midwestern state such as Illinois.

Indeed, a source close to Simon contends southerners will not be seduced back to the Democratic column by having one of their own in the second spot.

One out of ten women will develop breast cancer.

Perhaps the two most frightening words to a woman are breast cancer. The number one killer of females, breast cancer is a disease caused by uncontrolled growth of abnormal cells in the breast tissue. But with detection, effective treatment can be started immediately, therefore improving the patient's prognosis. The survival rate among women who find cancer before it is noticeable is 97 percent.

To answer the need for early detection of breast disease, St. Elizabeth Medical Center has established the Breast Diagnostic Program, which provides mammographies at almost half the cost of such procedures being done elsewhere. A convenient diagnostic procedure, a mammogram provides patients with high quality, high sensitivity images with minimal radiation exposure. (Physician referral is necessary)

Following the guidelines by the American Cancer Society, this simple, painless exam is currently the best method of detecting breast disease. The ACS recommends all women age 35 to 40 have an initial, routine mammogram; diagnostic exams periodically between age 40 and 50; and yearly exams after age 50.

How many will detect it in time?

If you're a woman age 35 or older and would like more information, call SEMC's Breast Diagnostic Program at 798-3181

III. National Guard to grow

The Illinois Army National Guard will add five troop units in the next 16 months, bringing in an additional $11 million in federal funds and some part-time jobs, Gov. James R. Thompson has announced.

"The Army National Guard is in a dynamic period in which more missions are being assigned. Planning for these missions will require changes in force structure and introduction of modern equipment to the Illinois Army National Guard," Thompson said.

A major unit added will be an Air Defense Artillery Battalion, totaling 622 personnel, consisting of 170 headquarters and three Air Defense Artillery Batteries with 151 personnel per battery.

To accommodate this large unit, existing armories will be used in an effort to avoid building new armory facilities and to ensure that support costs for activation of the units are kept to minimum.

It will be designated the 202d Air Defense Artillery Battalion and recruiting will begin for the the basins are periodically cleaned throughout the year and also will be checked as the crews clean the streets.

Areas cited in discussion as being in need of cleaning were an alley near Kennedy Drive and Elizabeth Street and the block of Fourth Street.

The mayor said the city has purchased 1,000 placards which will show the date and time of the cleanup work. The notices will be posted on particular streets prior to the day the street department will be sweeping them. This will give the residents an opportunity to move their vehicles for the day, he said; the department will clean streets from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Cars left on the curb will be towed and the owners will have to pay the towing charges, he said.

"This is the only way we can clean up winter debris from the streets and we hope all the people will cooperate with the project," Beloff said.

Alderman Robert Grieves said he has seen catch basins filling up with paper and debris, and asked if the basins could be cleaned quickly. Superintendent of Streets Robbie Robbins said

2 SIU trustees are reappointed

SPRINGFIELD — Two members of the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees have been reappointed to new six-year terms by Gov. James Thompson. The two trustees, whose terms end January 1993, were A.D. Van Meter Jr., 64, of Springfield and Bernard B. Birger, 70, of Collinsville.

Van Meter, president of Illinois National Bank in Springfield, has been on the SIU board since 1975.

Scout news

Granite City (Ill.) Press-Record, Thursday, March 12, 1987 — 1B

CHRISTY BOUGH crosses the finish line in an event at last summer's Mariner Games. She is a member of the Girl Scout Mariner program under the leadership of Diana Kinder, of Granite City, the Lorelei skipper.

Girl Scout Mariners elect 1987 officers

From the Mariner ship Lorelei, where Diana Kinder is skipper, comes the announcement that the group has openings for new members. The Girl Scout Mariners program offers fun to eighth through 12th grade girls who enjoy water activities.

The Lorelei is a Mariner group located in Granite City, Edwardsville and the surrounding area. So far this school year the girls have enjoyed two outdoor events.

In addition to practicing their nautical skills, they emphasize maintaining a strong spirit of camaraderie. The Lorelei ship is looking forward to the annual area competition, the Mariner games, held every August.

Officers of the Lorelei for this school year include Christy Bough, officer of the deck, from Edwardsville; Cathy Senderling, bosun, and Nannette Beck, yeoman, both from Granite City; and Amy Niskerd, of Granite City, officer of the deck (president) for the August event held in conjunction with the Mariners of St. Louis. In addition to the 18 members of the Lorelei, five girls are graduated from the group.

The graduates, called Barnacles, continue to support the Mariner program on the ship level and at Mariner's Garn.

Girls who wish to become Mariners must have strong swimming skills. Some are also members of Cadette or Senior Girl Scout troops while other girls participate only in the Mariner program. Those wishing information about becoming a Mariner may call Lorelei Skipper (leader) Diana Kinder, 876-5007.

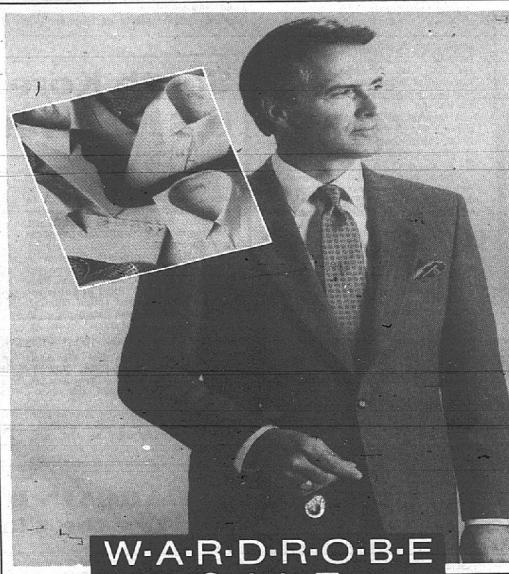

SAILING is a popular Mariner activity enjoyed by members of the Girl Scout Mariner program designed for girls from eighth grade level through the 12th grade. The group includes girls from Granite City, Edwardsville and the surrounding area.

In the Volo Bog

It all started about 12,000 years ago, when the Wisconsin glacier started to melt and then retreated from northeastern Illinois.

The glacier used to rest on what is now Volo Bog, near Ingleside, Ill., and as the glacier went north it left behind till (clay, gravel, boulders and sand). Large pieces of ice that broke off the moving glacier were left in that till and the melting ice bits left holes called kettle-holes. The large holes developed lakes and the smaller ones developed marshes and bogs.

Volo Bog has two kettle-holes in about 50 acres of land. One kettle, which was almost 50 feet deep, still has a little less than an acre of open water in it. The smaller hole has filled in with decomposed plants.

It is estimated that a lake existed on the site 1,000 years ago. It had poor drainage and very steep banks. The basin soon took in all sorts of natural debris until it became a bog.

Volo Bog is unique because it is the only open water quaking bog left in Illinois. Research on pollen taken from the bog shows the lake began filling in about 6,000 years ago.

In the center of the bog there is a floating mat of moss, cattails and sedges surrounding open water. The mat is disrupted by shrubs that include a large amount of poison sumac and tamarack. This is a tamarack forest, and surrounding it is another larger group of shrubs with a big sedge-marsh meadow lying beyond it.

Greg Behm, the bog superintendent, said that a person could bounce up and down on the mat over the water, causing even the trees, to move back and forth. Of course, such action is not allowed.

Because of no drainage and a lot of sphagnum moss, the bog water is acidic. Even the tamarack trees' falling needles release tannic acid, so there are no fish, but there are some reptiles, such as turtles, and amphibians.

Bogged down in Volo

Before I stepped on the boardwalk that would take me to the center of the Volo Bog, near Ingleside, Ill., I saw a wooden sign with letters in red burned into it, giving me a warning: "Hazardous Soil - Poisonous Shrubs - Stay on the Trail."

Of course, even with ice and snow covering most of the area in the ancient bog (it goes back thousands of years to the last ice age), was left and conjured up pictures from old movies showing someone being succumbed down into a marsh until the only thing visible is a floating hat.

I didn't notice any vines that I could latch onto and pull myself out with. I was told that "the apparent firmness of the ground is deceiving."

Behm, a floating mat of roots and plant stuff is 50 feet of water and more mud. In other words, it would be foolish to try to show off by leaving the safety of the boardwalk and do a little bog surfing.

Greg Behm, the site superintendent, told me that Volo Bog is unique because it is the only open water moist quaking bog left in the bog national succession. I wasn't about to test it by quaked by jumping up and down on the mat, for such activity is strictly forbidden. We were told to stay on the half-mile boardwalks.

If I did fall in and couldn't get out, I had the satisfaction of knowing my body would be buried there for many hundreds of years, and if future scientists wanted to study "early man," they could dig me out. There is no oxygen for decomposition in the bog, so my body would remain in it when I fell in.

There are no reports of any bodies being discovered in Volo Bog, in some Denver area bogs over 400 bodies and the artifacts they had been using have been found preserved — some for over 2,000 years.

Test cores taken out of Volo Bog have produced pollen grains from trees that lived there 12,000 years ago. These same grains also give a pretty good idea of what the climate was like at the time.

The cold temperatures which are just as bad to the touch in the winter as the summer, can give you a rash worse than poison ivy. The problem is trying to identify them. The best rule is not to touch anything.

The boardwalk takes you over a sedge-marsh meadow, through like frogs and toads, as well as 26 different species of plants in the bog. These plants can be found in far northern climates, but usually not in Illinois.

The plant life in and near the bog includes everything from an inedible cranberry to a ragged fringed orchid.

There are also two insect eaters, the pitcher plant and the sundew. They will take their 15 minutes to eat an insect and then they wait days between meals.

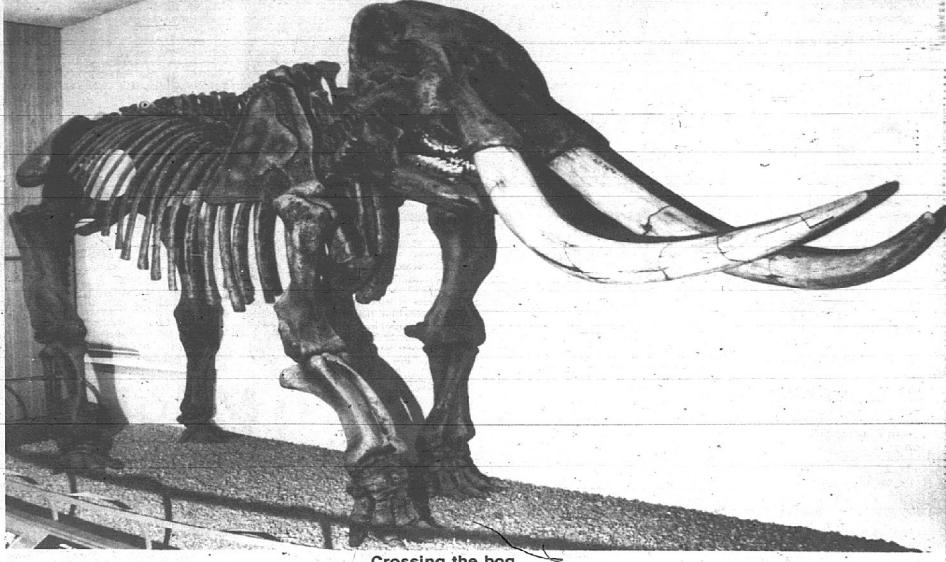

One of the plants to beware of — hoping that you won't be small enough for the insect-eaters, is the poison sumac. It is considered more powerful than poison ivy, and you are not safe from it even in the winter. It seems that all the plant parts are poisonous, just to be safe. The problem is being able to identify it. There are samples and pictures of it at the Visitor Center, but it still takes some experience to spot it.

The bog is a bird watcher's paradise. There are at least 82 migratory birds that have been seen in the spring, and there are just about as many birds there in the summer. One of the greatest is the house sparrow. The red-tailed and sparrow hawks are the most common hawks in the area. Other large birds found there include the turkey vulture and the Canada goose.

I noticed quite a few animal tracks in the snow, especially over the ice. I was told that one set was made by a beaver. The beaver also attracts muskrat, weasel, red fox, raccoon, beaver and even coyote.

Behm said he hadn't seen any coyote himself, but other people reported seeing them. He pointed out that, like the beaver, they are just coming back and that since the beaver pelts have gone down in value there are a lot more of them around.

I inquired if he had seen any wild turkey. He said they weren't around the northern part of the state but they were being introduced in Southern Illinois. I had seen several of them in a woods near the Meramec River in Missouri.

Crossing the bog

It took dedicated people to save the Volo Bog. In a fund-raising campaign, headed by Cyrus Mark, the first president of the Illinois Chapter of the Natural Conservancy, $40,000 was collected to buy the 47.5-acre bog in 1958.

Later the land was dedicated to the University of Illinois following a campaign by area citizens to save it from developers. It was put under the auspices of the Illinois Department of Conservation and dedicated as an Illinois Nature Preserve in 1970.

In 1973 it was registered as a National Natural Landmark with the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Since then the area has been expanded to nearly 870 acres. The additions include two other bogs across the road from the Volo Bog.

They are the Brandenburg and the Pistakee bogs, which haven't been opened to the public yet. These bogs, unlike Volo, are filled in, but they include the same plant species.

The new acquisitions include about 30 acres of restored prairie, historic areas with reforesting of native trees, and about 55 acres of fields that act as a buffer to the bogs.

With 140 acres of land being dedicated this spring, there will be a total of 400 acres used as a nature preserve.

The steep slopes about the tiny harbor were soft under their brown-green covering of lush moss and heather. The harbor was empty. In water so clear, so turquoise blue that we could see the sandy bottom, we dropped anchor.

Surrounding us, steep cliffs shot skywards with sea-birds circling and landing in the crags, and nesting in the ledges, giving them privacy. Upon a distant hill, we could make out the ruins of an old castle and behind it a single standing wall of an ancient church. Nothing moved across the empty landscape, but the shadows of clouds in the blue sky. From the distance came the lowing of an unseen cow and the barking of a dog.

The harbor reflected pure tranquility until suddenly a small boat passed out of the water nearby. Then another and another. Within seconds, there were dozens of them. Lion seals—bold, curious—were just having a peep away from the safety of their hole. Dick was filming around Youghal.

The Mediterranean? Or perhaps the Caribbean? No, the southern coast of Ireland is the location, though it has all the assets of both Mediterranean and Caribbean. Clean water, quiet coves, friendly people, pleasant watering holes and welcoming locals make this coastline an ideal destination for cruising.

Truly, it is a trip of a lifetime. The coastline extends more than 1,000 miles from Youghal in the east to Glengarriff in the west. The coastline itself is one of the most remarkable in Europe. It is sheltered all-weather anchorages, unpolluted water, gourmet restaurants, and an ever-present wind, usually south westerly.

My cruise began in Youghal, a small seaside town on the eastern borders of County Cork. The town itself has a long maritime history, dating back to the 15th century when it was one of the leading ports in Ireland. A former lord mayor was Sir Walter Raleigh whose house in Youghal still can be visited. The locals still speak of the day when Raleigh's ship, the "Dreadnaught," was beached at Youghal.

Westwards, the yacht glides past Youghal Harbor, the first Knockree Point, then Bantry Bay, along Power Head, past Roches Point and into the mouth of Cork Harbor.

This harbor is the bustling village of Cobh with its beautiful cathedral standing majestic overall. Cobh was once the main port of emigration for the United States. Irish left in the wake of Ireland's potato famine. Nearby is Fota Island, now a major game park concentrating on the breeding of endangered animals. At the end of the peninsula is the second largest in Ireland, whose inhabitants have been able to preserve the friendly attitudes of a small town.

During the week, seafood was the mainstay. There was a choice: eating out in gourmet restaurants in Youghal, Cork and Kinsale, the acknowledged gastronomic capitals of Ireland, with many splendid restaurants and wine bars, or buying fresh fish, oysters, clams and lobster trailers directly from the fishing trawlers. We did both.

Add to that the fresh vegetables we bought from the local markets and one can see that we would drop the main aim of our vacation if we had not brought along long lines and feast on the finest fresh fish from the sea, fried simply in butter.

Estates. With more than 40 historic houses, castles and manors throughout the country, a tour of these places is indeed a comprehensive and aesthetic way to see a different side of Irish life and culture.

Like most European capitals, Dublin has its own castle right in the heart of the city. Built in the early 13th century, Dublin Castle is now used for state receptions and occasions such as the inauguration of Irish presidents.

A stroll from the castle through the center of Dublin also leads the visitor to parks and squares at almost every turn. One of the most famous is St. Stephen's Green, which contains 22 acres of paths and trails, flower gardens and an ornamental lake with resident waterfowl.

Dublin's largest park, and indeed one of the largest enclosed parks in Europe, is Phoenix Park. With a circumference of 7 miles, it includes a network of gardens, lakes, roads, trails and paths as well as a zoo known throughout the world for its variety of animals. In addition, the residence of the president of Ireland and the U.S. ambassador are located within the grounds. There are many sports facilities, including a polo field and a horse racing track.

The Phoenix Park race course is the site of one of Dublin's newest outdoor attractions—a Sunday market that has shown ease for local arts, crafts, antiques and produce, as well as a setting for open-air musical events.

Newbridge Estate, among the Dublin area's finest houses and gardens, was opened to the public in 1986. Located slightly north of the city at Donabate, this 1740 country mansion is full of memorabilia of the Cobbe museum of world travels and contains an extensive doll collection. The wooded grounds and gardens of Cork, everything changes. Low hills suddenly give way to rocky cliffs and distant mountains. Bays stretch farther inland and fingers of water apart from one another. Rocks and heather take the place of lush, grassy fields. Atop a cliff can be seen the building from which Marconi first sent radio signals. The stark landscape is dramatic and beautiful. Most nights were passed in small village pubs with no qualms about freedom without fear of disturbance.

On average, yachts (which accommodate up to six passengers) cost about $1,100 per week to charter. This includes a qualified skipper for the boat for those not familiar with sailing. Yachts come fully equipped with kitchen, toilet, shower and other necessary facilities. Most yachts are owned by sailors with no qualified skipper and these cost less, but only experienced sailors will be allowed to hire on this basis.

Our final stopping point was Bantry Bay. The Beara Peninsula, with the Caher Mountains running down its spine, was breathtaking. We had encountered only a few dozen other yachts during our week-long cruise. Industry along the coast was non-existent. Perhaps that was the true beauty of this coastline: a feeling of freedom without fear of disturbance.

Reviews

By Frank Hunter

Here-today-and-gone-tomorrow sales types will always roam the land, but a particularly happy-go-lucky breed in Baltimore these days is the type who, like num-sidem salesmen, resurrected from the memory of Barry Levinson and deliciously lampooned in his ruseful comedy Tin Men.

Writer-director Levinson has plotted adolescent anger in Diner, delved into mythological baseball in The Natural, and now turned back to Victorian England in Young Sherlock Holmes.

In Tin Men he returns to his hometown of Baltimore, casts Richard Dreyfuss as BB Babowsky and Danny DeVito in the role of Ernest Tilley and draws on his fund of stories about the flamboyant, Ruebenque siding peddlers who hung out at the Hilltop Restaurant swapping lies and boasting with laughter over their more successful sales. And the salesmen considered themselves "professionals" in every sense of the word.

Levinson says, "In many ways, Tin Men is a rather malevolent spiritual extension of Diner in that these men were husbands and fathers who never really grew up, a colorful, good-humored, irresponsible gang of con artists boozing it up at the corner saloon after work, living on next month's commissions, making payments on Cadillacs with their gigantic ugly tail fins but still looking forward to trading for a new one."

Tin Men with names like "Abe the Konk," "Jake the Fake" and "Marty from the Party" usually didn't get far, but the bumbling Tilley, dropped by the Pinhook Race Track to catch up on the latest schemes and then game away their earnings.

The party worked more than four hours a day, four days a week. As they drove their flashy cars around town looking for unsuspecting homeowners to bilk, it appeared that nothing was too much for them to do for a buck.

It was a time when the state of Maryland was just becoming involved in consumer protection legislation, but the laws were too late to help thousands of innocent homeowners get financially off the hook once the Tin Men had signed them up for a one-upmanship.

Of the two, Babowsky is the more imaginative and cruelly effective. He doesn't ruse that will deliver the ultimate punch

Bartenders, patrons to aid MS campaign

The eighth annual ugliest bartender contest is being held.

The contest involves bartenders from four regions — metro St. Louis, eastern Missouri, central Missouri and southern Illinois.

The SUU duo of M. Scott Parsons of Wadsworth, Ohio, and Bibi L. Christoff, 85 Brainerd Lane, Granite City, finished third.

Between March 13 and April 28, friends, patrons and fellow bartenders can 25 cent votes for their favorite bartender. All proceeds benefit the Multiple Sclerosis Society. Dan Dierdorf will serve as honorary chairman for the eighth consecutive year.

String fling at SIU

About 150 violin or cello students, age 3 to 15, will participate in a public performance Sunday, March 22, in the Communications Building auditorium at SIUE.

The free program at 3:30 p.m. is open to the public. It will conclude a three-day workshop of stringed instrument instruction at SIUE Building II for students of the Suzuki method.

The Suzuki technique, which was developed by Dr. Shinichi Suzuki, emphasizes learning by playing actual compositions in contrast to strict use of standard exercises.

Directors of the workshop and performance are John R. Kendall and Richard Kent Perry, SIUE professors of music.

One salesman in Baltimore turned a diner into his office and wrote up deals on the hood of his car. The man reportedly died a million-dollar-a-year fat man with high blood pressure and a lot of bills he can't pay.

Before it's over, Babowsky and Tilley have become a good deal sadder and more hard up than ever, but not a whit wiser, insofar as their ethically behavior. The audience is solidly laughing at the upper-class players, Jackie Gayle, John Mahoney, Bruno Kirby and Seymour Cassel, and the delightful chemistry between Dreyfuss and DeVito. It's a lively picture crammed with nostalgic touches and funny performances.

Tin Men is rated R. (Language, sexual theme.)

Showing at the Alton, Creve Coeur, Clarkson, Halls Ferry, Kenrick, Ronnie's and St. Clair. 10K.

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Fit for a queen

Antique show at SIUE

There will be more dealers than ever before at the 17th annual Antique Show and Sale, Saturday and Sunday, March 28-29, at SIUE.

It will be our best time at the University Center again, where we'll have room for about 40 dealers. We could handle 30 in the space we've had in the past in the University Center Hall, but Roland Bauer of Collinville, president of Friends of Lovejoy Library,

The 400-member organization sponsors the sale yearly, raising about $8,000 of the $80,000 annual contribution to acquisition and preservation needs of the library.

The event is planned by a committee of the Friends of Lovejoy Library. About 60 volunteering members will be assisting in preparations, operations, and cleanup for the sale.

This year "it's always a stampede when the doors open," said Donna Bardon, coordinator of Lovejoy Library activities.

In addition to the 40 dealers, the Friends again will have two booths, one for antique items and the other for old books.

"Among the books are some particularly good old regional atlases. They're always popular. The antiques are donated by Friends and there always are some unusual things," Bardon said.

The additional dealers will include specialists in old maps and prints, jewelry and lamps. There will be more space for furniture, antiques, she said.

Among dealers who weren't in last year's show, but will be in this one, Bardon said, are Antique Prints & Maps, Clayton, Mo.; Antiques and Now & Then Antiques, both of St. Louis; Apple Pie Antiques, Steeleville; The Welcome Return, Alton; Cadwell's, Griggsville; Fleuris-antiques, Florissant, Mo.; and Pictures Lamps & Glass, Eureka, Mo.

Individual tickets are good for both days of the show. Prices are $5 for adults and $1.50 for students. They are available at ME & Annie's, 138 N. Main St., Edwardsville, or at SIUE at the Circulation, Library Reference Desk and Union Station Ticket Office.

Advance tickets are $2 for the general public and $1.50 for SIUE students. They are available at ME & Annie's, 138 N. Main St., Edwardsville, or at SIUE at the Circulation, Library Reference Desk and Union Station Ticket Office.

The concert featuring several singing groups from the St. Louis metropolitan area, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free, but donations for the benefit of the Gospel Choir organization will be accepted.

Seminar on utilities

A three-part seminar on public utilities will be held at SIUE on April 1, 8 and 16 in the Redbud, Old Hickory Room of the University Center, 10 a.m. The sessions are free, and the public is encouraged to attend. For more information, the number is 692-3600.

Madisonians to attend conferences

By Donna Kimbro
Staff writer

MADISON — Administrators and secretaries of Madison schools will be attending workshops and conferences this month.

Board approval was given March 5 for three grants to attend an assistant principal workshop at SIUE on March 17 and Kenneth Perkins, principal of the Middle School, to participate in an Illinois Principals Association conference in Bloomington on March 9. Six secretaries will take part in the Illinois Association of Secretaries spring conference March 27 in Decatur.

John Harrison, student council sponsor, will attend a drug and alcohol prevention conference on April 3, in conjunction with the Illinois Principals Association in all Madison schools this year.

The retirement of Rosemary Smith, a school cafeteria cook, was accepted effective March 5.

Betty Sipes, cafeteria director, said this position will be posted in all schools and she expects some of the substitute employees to apply for the job.

Sipes was given permission to seek bids for school lunch food items and equipment used by the cafeteria.

President John Hamm announced board committee appointments for the year: Lunch and Cafeteria Committee, Ed Dohnal; Bookaway Supplies, Textbooks and Equipment, James Newsome and Equillie Bosworth; and Ed Warchol; Personnel, Billie Bosworth; Hamm, Dohnal and Dohnal; Billie Bosworth; and Transportation, Don Garrett, Dohnal and Bosworth.

Hamm said he will appoint another committee chair to work with union negotiations. He and Bosworth were named to the committee, with Dohnal as an alternate member.

The Parents Club will change its March 17 meeting to 5:30 p.m. and the theme will be a "taste tease" with a variety of foods and a craft auction.

All proceeds will be donated to the American Heart Association, the board noted.

Bernard Long, principal of Blair School, spoke at the board meeting and reported that library programs held Feb. 20. The school's attendance rose to 96 percent for February. There are 191 pupils at the school and, of that number, 180 have attained perfect attendance since the opening of school in 1986-87.

Roger Barnhart, principal of Louis Baer School, announced plans for the final trip of the St. Louis Synphones for two fourth-grade classes, and a session with teachers on participation in a science and mathematics conference.

He said there will be a safety program at the school April 21 with Madison police officers participating. He invited all board members to attend.

Madison Middle School band members will attend the annual solo and ensemble music contest to be held at East Alton Junior High School on March 25. William Lockette told the board.

Board approval was given to purchase an Olivetti word processor at a cost of $4,175 for the board office.

Three scholarships are to be awarded: four for $18,000, five for $12,000, six for $8,000 and eight for $4,000. All scholarship amounts are based on a four-year period.

Requiring social security numbers for some children isn't new. Banks and other financial institutions previously have required a number for certain investments made in a child's name.

This is a secondary reason for requiring the number, so mom and dad don't try to hide money by saying it's really junior's money.

Perhaps it's because this provision for the new tax law went unnoticed in the news stories on the new tax law, there haven't been many calls either way, Axton says. However, she remembers one caller in particular who was worried about misplacing his card.

Getting youngsters into the computers of the federal government is the aim of a largely overlooked provision in the new federal tax law passed last year.

The kids can't be claimed next year.

Children must be five before Oct. 1, 1987, to register. Health examinations must be obtained before each child begins the fall term.

Parents should bring their children to the schools serving their area between 9 a.m. and noon or from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. on the dates listed above.

Why has Big Brother increased his field of vision to include youngsters?

Says the Internal Revenue Service's Edna Axton, "It's a way for the IRS to basically keep tabs on everybody." Axton is a taxpayer service representative.

She says such a requirement is necessary to catch people who falsely claim a child as a dependent.

"It's been a problem with divorced or separated parents," Axton says.

Red Devils going to state

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

CHARLESTON — On the court where it all ended last season, there was a celebration Tuesday night.

Each and every Venice Red Devil fan remembers the night of March 11, 1986, when the team sank deep in the stomach. The Devils stood toe-to-toe with the unbeaten Teutopolis Wooden Shoes, only to lose by two points and fail to advance to the state final.

That happened at Lantz Gymnasium on the campus of Eastern Illinois University; and Tuesday night, exactly 53 weeks later, the fate of the 1987 Red Devils returned to Lantz, and nothing was going to stop them this time. They overcame some nagging little problems, scored 61 points against the Newton Eagles in the Charleston Super-Sectional and advance to this weekend's Illinois High School Association Class A state tournament in Champaign.

"It's a good feeling," said Red Devil coach Clinton Harris. "We're ready to go play with the big boys."

None of Venice's post-season games have been easy this year, and Tuesday was no different. The Devils should have had an early indication that things wouldn't be easy when they missed a turnover on the interstate and didn't arrive at the gym until 7:15, a whole 15 minutes before tipoff.

The team got into their uniforms on the bus and showed up just in time to run into a pesky squad from Newton. The Eagles, who finished at 21-8, had upset Pleasant Prairie (Red Devil) Sectional final Friday, and weren't expected to give Venice much trouble. But they did, particularly 6-4 senior center Scott Wagy and 6-2 junior forward Ken Bierman.

Wagy scored 28 points, including 17 in the first half, as neither Daryl Jackson nor Darel Bule had much luck on the inside. But a zone defense limited his effectiveness in the second half and Bierman's strong outside shooting turned cold as the Devils took the game away in the fourth quarter.

"I had heard Wagy was one of the better inside players

No. 1 St. Mel beaten; Devils face Pearl City

All year long, the Red Devils (19-12) had had to play catch-up and fiddle to Providence-St. Mel in the Illinois Class A basketball poll. When the original poll came out just after New Year's Day, Venice was No. 15.

They stayed that way throughout the regular season, but when the final eight teams gather in Champaign tomorrow for the state tournament, Clinton Harris' Red Devils will be the team to beat.

That's because the Knights from St. Mel fell in overtime to Ottawa Marquette in the New Lenox Super-Sectional on Tuesday, 80-77. The Knights finished their season at 27-4 while the Crusaders carry the same record to Champaign.

The Red Devils, meanwhile, will face Pearl City (30-0) in Friday's quarterfinal at 1:45 p.m. The Wolves defeated Cambridge 56-53 in the East Moline Super-Sectional Tuesday. They go 10-6 and 6-4 across the frontline, bound," Harris said. "And he was strong tonight. If he got a hold of the ball down low, it was two points. We went to a zone to stop him and made them beat us with the long shot."

The Eagles couldn't do it, and Venice, which led only 52-47 after three quarters, finally pulled away in the final eight minutes.

The Devils had to consider themselves fortunate to take a 33-28 lead to the locker room at halftime. All-State forward Jesse Hall found himself in foul trouble, something that plagued him the entire post-season — and he sat on the bench the entire second quarter with two fouls. Add to that the fact Wilfred Wigfall's usual reliable outside jump shot wasn't falling at all, and things looked grim.

But enter junior guard Dale Turner. He has been known to score at times, but he usually quarterbacked the offense and played defense. But with Hall getting only five in the first half and Wigfall getting two, the offense fell into Turner's lap. He responded with 14 points in the first 16 minutes and finished with 26 senior company. Vincent Harris also collected eight of his 12 points before intermission.

"When Jesse and Wig aren't scoring, the offense has to come from one of us," Harris said. "I knew that either me or D.J. (Turner) would have to do something, and we both hit some shots."

"Everybody on the team can score if we have to," Turner said. "So when Jesse gets in foul trouble, somebody has to come through. I'm glad I could do it."

Bierman opened the game with a basket, and Wagy made it 4-2 with a layup. But Turner sandwiched two outside shots around one from Hall. Hall extended the lead to 15-10 with a swooping layup with 23 seconds left, but

Late-arriving Red Devils did it

CHARLESTON — For one came here Tuesday night to watch the Venice Red Devils play basketball. It probably been a shame if they hadn't got here. Shortly after 7 p.m., the Newton Eagles ran onto the court accompanied by a large crowd from the contingent of fans. As the Eagles warmed up at the north end of the court at Lantz Gymnasium, the south end remained empty.

Well, the Devils were the No. 2 team in the state. They deserved to make their grand entrance with most of the fans already in their seats. They were probably just waiting until the right moment. Sure enough, here they came at 7:20 p.m., just 10 minutes before tipoff.

They must have felt they didn't need much of a warmup to beat the Eagles.

Wrong.

"As it turned out, the Devils just barely made it to the aid of the Devils when Jesse Hall and Wilfred Wigfall had first-half problems Tuesday. Turner had 14 of his 20 points in the first half as Venice advanced to the state tournament with a 72-61 win over Newton at Charleston.

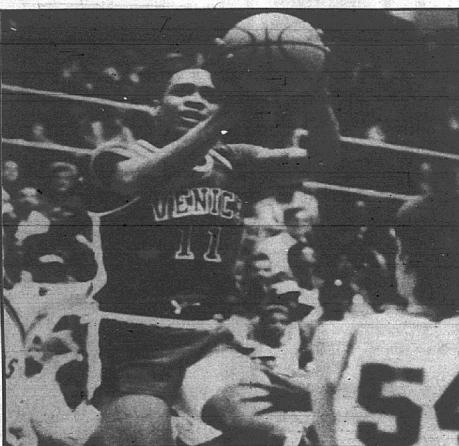

It's hard to give them a pep talk on the bus," Venice coach Clinton Harris said. "And when we made the wrong turn, we had to change into our uniforms on the bus."

That they did, although Hosea King and John Marchbanks were still in street clothes when the Devils took the court. Once those two had suited up, Venice was ready to fly.

But the pre-game confusion might have contributed to another slow start, and the Eagles used the great inside play of center Scott Wagy and the perimeter shooting of Ken Bierman to stay right with the Devils in the first half.

It was only for Venice fans. Dale Turner didn't miss the bus. With Jesse Hall picking up two early fouls and giving only five first-half points and Wilfred Wigfall seemingly leaving

COLLINSVILLE — Kahok basketball coach Bob Bone likens the way things went yesterday at Lincoln to a "100 to 1 shot."

That description is usually reserved for describing 30-footers at the buzzer and the sort.

But that's what the Kahok coaches thought of their team's 6-10 junior post man, LePhonso Ellis, who was able to drop in the winning layup with only three seconds left in the contest to give the Tigers an 8-7 lead.

"It's something that looked funny," he said. "I think everyone in the building knew he did (travel).

"I guess some things weren't meant to be."

The Kahoks played the first

Rodney Chavis, who with 10 seconds left and his team trailing 47-46 sliced through a five-man Kahok press and reached the ball on the baseline, briefly lost control of the ball, which was deflected in a crowd right to Ellis underneath the basket.

Ellis was true with his layup.

A couple of seconds later, when the Kahoks after a timeout came up empty and the Tigers were fortunate visitors.

Bone saw a potential traveling call coming and he bobbed the ball on his drive, and it clearly weighed on his mind in the locker room moments after the contest.

"It's something that looked funny," he said. "I think everyone in the building knew he did (travel).

"I guess some things weren't meant to be."

The Kahoks played the first

three quarters according to what

Bone ordered — deliberate offensive plays blended with turnover-oriented defense. Collinsville neared a 10-point lead in the first 24 minutes and even led briefly on four occasions, but most important to the Kahoks was they began the final quarter within shooting distance.

The opening 4½ minutes were a disaster for the Kahoks, though, as Lincoln began forcing turnovers that were promptly cashed in by the visitors.

Going back to the third quarter, Lincoln outscored the Kahoks 11-0 in a span of 6:02 and led 38-28 before Brad Keene finally put the front end of a bonus with 3:28 left.

Lincoln would later enjoy its biggest lead, 40-29, and a basket by Ellis with only 2:28 left in the contest kept the Tigers ahead comfortably at 43-33. Other than for a brief slowdown period early in the fourth quarter, though, the Tigers played playground brand basketball rather than bona fide content with protecting the lead.

The combination of Lincoln's insistence on putting up silly shots and a furious rally by the Kahoks led to the following sequence:

• Tip-in by Tom Gilliland, 2:12 left, 43-35 Lincoln lead;

• Two free throws by Jon Sherry, 2:00 left, 43-37 Kahok lead;

• Tip-in by Gilliland, 1:49 left, 43-39 Lincoln lead (Tigers call time);

• Layup by Keene after triple-time foul, 42-39 Lincoln lead;

• Layup by Gilliland after foul, 43-41 Lincoln lead;

• Baseline jumper by Sherry after Lincoln's Chris Rodgers fouls out on charging violation, 55 seconds left, game tied 43-43.

In the final 35 seconds, Ellis scored his team's final five points. First he hit two free throws, but those were quickly answered by a layup-like shot by Sherry with 41 seconds left to draw the Kahoks even again.

Ed Ware gave Venice an eight-point lead over the Venetians, but those couldn't hold on.

"I said that to somebody," Turner said. "I knew we were right where we were last year, and we just had to play smart. We didn't get off to a good start, but I'm glad we did it."

Together, the two guards outscored the usually deadly Hall-Wigfall combination 22-7 in the first half.

"I know somebody would have to score when Jesse got in foul trouble," Turner said.

A lot of Turner's points come on fast break layups, and his quickness to get to the basket, and he had his share of those. But he also surprised Newton by popping in several outside jump shots. And Turner had a hand followed suit. And Turner led the team in rebounds in the first half and finished with eight, the same as Hall.

Well, the Devils have reached their goal, and they did it Tuesday night against Newton at the Charleston Super-Sectional.

Jesse Hall and Wilfred Wigfall had first-half problems Tuesday. Turner had 14 of his 20 points in the first 16 minutes.

Together, the two guards outscored the usually deadly Hall-Wigfall combination 22-7 in the first half.

"It's a dream I've had for a long time," Vincent Harris said of the trip to state. "We want to go up there and do well."

As for Hall, he's hoping the officials let him play his game in Champaign.

"I think it's evident that they're watching me," he said.

"They're letting it on. I'm just getting touch fouls. They should let us play in Champaign."

All the Devils are ready to play in the Assembly Hall. They are used to playing in big gyms, having played at EIU the last two years and also at Kiel Auditorium and the Vadalabene Center this year.

"I'm going to be playing there the next four years anyway, so I might as well go in now," said Harris. "I'm going to play in Assembly Hall with the Michigan State Spartans for Big 10 action against Illinois starting next season."

Lincoln nips Kahoks on last-second shot

By Jim Woodcock

Staff writer

COLLINSVILLE — Kahok basketball coach Bob Bone likens the way things went yesterday at Lincoln to a "100 to 1 shot."

That description is usually reserved for describing 30-footers at the buzzer and the sort.

But that's what the Kahok coaches thought of their team's 6-10 junior post man, LePhonso Ellis, who was able to drop in the winning layup with only three seconds left in the contest to give the Tigers an 8-7 lead.

"It's something that looked funny," he said. "I think everyone in the building knew he did (travel).

"I guess some things weren't meant to be."

The Kahoks played the first

Rodney Chavis, who with 10 seconds left and his team trailing 47-46 sliced through a five-man Kahok press and reached the ball on the baseline, briefly lost control of the ball, which was deflected in a crowd right to Ellis underneath the basket.

Ellis was true with his layup.

A couple of seconds later, when the Kahoks after a timeout came up empty and the Tigers were fortunate visitors.

Bone saw a potential traveling call coming and he bobbed the ball on his drive, and it clearly weighed on his mind in the locker room moments after the contest.

"It's something that looked funny," he said. "I think everyone in the building knew he did (travel).

"I guess some things weren't meant to be."

The Kahoks played the first

three quarters according to what

Bone ordered — deliberate offensive plays blended with turnover-oriented defense. Collinsville neared a 10-point lead in the first 24 minutes and even led briefly on four occasions, but most important to the Kahoks was they began the final quarter within shooting distance.

The opening 4½ minutes were a disaster for the Kahoks, though, as Lincoln began forcing turnovers that were promptly cashed in by the visitors.

Going back to the third quarter, Lincoln outscored the Kahoks 11-0 in a span of 6:02 and led 38-28 before Brad Keene finally put the front end of a bonus with 3:28 left.

Lincoln would later enjoy its biggest lead, 40-29, and a basket by Ellis with only 2:28 left in the contest kept the Tigers ahead comfortably at 43-33. Other than for a brief slowdown period early in the fourth quarter, though, the Tigers played playground brand basketball rather than bona fide content with protecting the lead.

The combination of Lincoln's insistence on putting up silly shots and a furious rally by the Kahoks led to the following sequence:

• Tip-in by Tom Gilliland, 2:12 left, 43-35 Lincoln lead;

• Two free throws by Jon Sherry, 2:00 left, 43-37 Kahok lead;

• Tip-in by Gilliland, 1:49 left, 43-39 Lincoln lead (Tigers call time);

• Layup by Keene after triple-time foul, 43-41 Lincoln lead;

• Baseline jumper by Sherry after Lincoln's Chris Rodgers fouls out on charging violation, 55 seconds left, game tied 43-43.

In the final 35 seconds, Ellis managed only to hit the second half of a two-point foul with 29 seconds left to put the Tigers ahead 46-45. On the inbound play, Keene maneuvered downcourt to the baseline and forced a foul by Ellis (his first foul) with 10 seconds left to draw the Kahoks even again.

The Kahoks cleverly forced up a weak shot when he was fouled and was awarded a two-shot opportunity at the line. He hit both baskets twice to put the Kahoks up 48-47 and send a huge Kahok contingent of fans into a tizzy.

The Tigers then called time out and set up the controversial winning play.

'Rebuilding' Trojans hope for another good track year

By Carl Jacobs
Staff writer

MADISON — The Trojan track team may be rebuilding this year, but they have solid foundation on which to construct.

Madison will have 13 returning athletes, including seven seniors from last year's 11-1 team. The only team that beat them in a meet was O'Fallon, a school with 40 more students than Madison.

Despite having seven returning seniors, Madison also lost seven seniors and veteran coach Charles Steptoe is going into the season with eyes wide open.

"We won't be able to repeat last year's record," Steptoe said.

"Unless there are a lot of surprises."

With the numbers Steptoe has, he could have a prosperous year. Last year's team placed four athletes in the state meet. Reggie Young was the only one to medal, however, and he finished second in the triple jump with a leap of 46 feet, 7 inches. Young was among the graduating seniors.

Also competing in the state meet were Steptoe's 400 and 800 meter relay teams, his two-mile relay team and Young in the triple jump.

Steptoe will have two runners back from last year's relay teams. This year's team features some experienced seniors, juniors and sophomores to go with some freshmen that are expected to help the teams succeed.

Expected to lead the team this year are seniors Ottie and Avery Ware, and sophomore Jessie Leonard. Girls relay in the 400 and 800 meter runs and on the one-and-a-half-mile relay teams.

Avery ran in the mile and 800 meter races and returns with his brother.

Leonard, a sophomore, will compete in at least four events. They include the long jump, triple jump, 400 and 800 meter relay teams and the sprints.

Other returning lettermen who supply the supporting cast include senior William Brockton in the 200 and 400 meter races and the mile relay team.

Juniors Roosevelt Darden will run in the mile and two-mile events and Ricky Ball in the 400 and 800 meter relay teams.

Angelo Cross will compete in the sprints and shot put. Anthony Young will run in the 400 and 800 meters. Sophomore Greg Baker will return the 200 and 400 meters and Gary Stanley rounds out the returning runners as he runs in the 100 and 200 meters.

Senior Ted Kemp will lead the team in the field events as he helps his sister and discus. He will be joined by Fred Straubers in the shot and junior high jumpers Howard Murray and Orlando McCarthy.

What Steptoe wants most are his transfers and freshman athletes. Transfer Marvin Gates will run in the mile and two-mile. Ian Smith from Hazelwood East in St. Louis will run in the 100 and 200 meter dashes and the 400 meter race.

"I hope Smith can help us out on the 400 meter race," Steptoe said. "Freshmen can also help us right away."

Freshmen include Scott Karsinski, Darnell Dandridge and John Garrett.

"I think this a rebuilding year, I am optimistic about the season," Steptoe said. "Because this a rebuilding year does not mean we can't be successful."

The Trojans get tested right away as they run in the Charles Ton Indoor Invitations this weekend.

"It could be our toughest meet outside the Belleville Invitational and the sectional meet," Steptoe said.

Though Steptoe is concerned about the belt-tightening going on, he wants his team to do well in the sectional meet that looms at the end of the season.

JESSE LEONARD is one reason the Madison Trojans are looking for another good track season. Leonard starred as a freshman in 1986 and should be better this year.

Sports briefs

Venice to stage father-son game

High school students who are not involved in the Venice basketball program will compete against fathers in a special Fathers vs. Sons contest Friday, March 20.

The action starts at 7 p.m. March 20 in the Venice High School gym. Admission is $1 per person.

Both teams are getting ready for the match, said Venice Grade School Principal Seth Kirkpatrick, who is coaching the student squad.

"We are holding separate practice sessions because we don't want to tip our techniques to them," Kirkpatrick said.

Coaching the fathers' team is Bud "Front-runner" Jackson. "It should be a fun game and we're looking forward to playing," Kirkpatrick said.

The public is invited to attend the event, which is being sponsored by the Venice Parent-Teacher Association, PTA members and students are now selling tickets.
